Company Profile

A Note from the President

Stone Environmental Services, LLC was founded by Anna Milantoni in 2001. She previously worked for a national environmental services company for 14 years prior to the Division being sold. This was seen as an opportunity to start her own company and apply the knowledge and experience that was gained over many years of service.

The company provides industry with metal cleaning chemistry, environmental and lab services, refrigerants and waste management services.

Determined through many years of working in the industry, the most important issues were quality products, customer service and assuring that services were done right the first time. Finding top quality manufacturers and distributors was the main goal for Stone Environmental Services before it opened it's doors. The companies that Stone Environmental Services has chosen to ally with are known to be among the best in their industry. They have proven to be loyal, professional and reliable.

Stone Environmental Services is a small, certified, woman-owned enterprise. whose focus is to work with companies that demand quality vendors, but also want to meet the requirements set forth by government contracts. A percentage of government business goes to small veteran-owned, disadvantaged and woman-owned companies.

Stone Environmental Services in turn also looks for vendors that fall into these categories and has been very successful in finding small companies that meet performance expectations.
